“Migrating Visions: The Art of Karl and Indira Johnson,” opened the series of first-floor gallery exhibitions during 2016 at the Swedish American Museum. The exhibit opened on Friday, Jan. 15, and may be seen during Museum hours through Saturday, March 26.

A Gallery Walk through the exhibit was held on Saturday, Jan. 16. A Start with Art program from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Friday, Jan. 29, will precede a Family Night from 4 to 7 p.m. the same day.

On Sunday, Feb. 7 starting at 2 p.m., the Museum will co-host a special program around the exhibit with the Indo-American Heritage Museum. This event will provide another opportunity to meet the artists, be entertained by performances by Indian and Swedish dance groups, and enjoy a moderated discussion about the work shown in “Migrating Visions” with curators and the artists behind the exhibit.

The Johnsons, who met at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago in the 1960s, have lived together for 40 years in Sweden, India and the United States. Karl grew up in Libertyville, Ill., and Indira hails from Mumbai. They married in India and then moved to Sweden, where Karl held a grant to study at the University of Lund.

Mentored in Chicago by contemporary artists Ray Yoshida and Roger Brown, Karl Johnson developed techniques that use multiple layers of paint in works that are inspired by nature. A past vice president of his family’s arboricultural business, he has devoted all his time to the arts since 2008.

Indira Johnson, a sculptor, uses discarded objects to create new pieces that explore changes in the cycle of birth, death and rebirth. Her work leads her to question the issues of permanence and decay, strength and vulnerability.

Visitors to the exhibition at the Swedish American Museum may perceive a fusion of form and ideas. Their philosophies and vision appear and disappear in each other’s works as they continue creative journeys individually.

See page 2 for future gallery installations that are planned for 2016. ■

Executive Director’s Letter

Dear Members and Friends,

Here we are again, starting a new year. It’s amazing how fast the last year seems to have passed when looking back. Many of us try to think of new goals and resolutions of what to accomplish in the next twelve months. For me it means doing something I didn’t make time to do or complete in the past year.

At the Museum we use January and the beginning of a new year to reflect on the previous 12 months. Closest in our minds is of course all the activities in December. We were so fortunate to see many of you during our special events or when you visited the store and exhibits. It is a very special time for all of us and I personally feel privileged to be part of the Museum and to celebrate and honor our Swedish heritage together with you. We also look ahead to the upcoming year and how we can make sure our programs and events, both new and traditional, are attractive to everyone within our Museum community.

In addition to our regular programs we have a couple of special occasions to celebrate in 2016 — 40 years of the Swedish American Museum and 15 years of Brunk Children’s Museum of Immigration. As part of this celebration, we recently added the special daily message #OnThisDay that our volunteer Kate Sheehy has worked on together with board members and volunteers. They have collected memories from the Museum’s history and post a special message each day. You can find these messages on the Museum’s website, Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram but also at the Museum.

In looking back, I hope you all had a good holiday and were able to spend some time with family and friends. In looking ahead, I look forward to seeing you at our upcoming events and exhibits. Together we will have a great year at the Swedish American Museum. Thanks for all you do and for your continued support.

God Fortsättning!

Volunteers Wanted

Do you have some time and/or talent to give to the Swedish American Museum? We gladly accept!

We have many volunteer opportunities available from working in the Museum Store to helping out in our archives. You can volunteer for a few hours or an entire day on a one-off or regular basis.

This winter, we encourage those who can’t make a regular commitment to volunteering to join us on our Days of Volunteering, which will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 16, Wednesday, March 9 and Thursday, April 14.

Future Gallery Installations Planned for 2016

Sparkling New Donations

Autumn and winter of 2015 saw many new and fabulous additions to the permanent collection of the Swedish American Museum. Our generous community donated domestic items, archival material, textiles and many other items to help us tell the story of Swedes in North America.

One donation, given in October 2015 by Diane and David Manthey, is a collection of Swedish-made crystal, which includes several bowls, vases, goblets and art pieces. Glass has a significant history in Sweden. From the infancy of glass production in Sweden in the 16th century—when King Gustav Vasa brought glassmakers to Stockholm from abroad—until the 19th century, glass products remained luxury items. Each piece was individually crafted and blown by artisans while large numbers of workers kept smelting ovens hot, assisted blowers, cleaned molds and packed finished products.

Sweden was well-positioned to excel in glass production as it has vast forests and other raw materials such as sand required to produce on a large scale. In the 19th century, the southern region of Småland was often referred to as the “Kingdom of Crystal” due to its large number of glassworks—far more than any other area of Sweden. The late 19th and early 20th century introduced many technical innovations to Sweden’s glass industry that made glass products cheaper to produce and therefore more available to the middle and lower classes.

In the early 20th century, Sweden’s glassworks began to employ more domestic glass blowers and artisans than foreign and by the 1925 Paris Exposition, Sweden’s glass design had taken on a unique character that set it apart from other countries on the world stage. Today, Swedish glass products, both art glass and practical items, are world-renowned for their design and quality.

If you are interested in learning more about contemporary Swedish art glass make sure to visit the Museum during summer of 2016 when we will be hosting an exhibition of contemporary art glass from Swedish glassworks, Målerås!!

IMLS Awards Collections Grant to the Museum

In September of 2015, the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) awarded a Museums For America grant to the Swedish American Museum to support the purchase and installation of a high-density shelving system for our collections storage area. Museums For America supports a museum’s ability to serve its public through several targeted programs. Our award is funded through the Collections Stewardship initiative.

The new shelving that we purchase will be a set of movable carriages along a floor track that compact together, only opening one aisle at a time—effectively eliminating the wasted floor space between shelving units. Installation of this system along the north wall of our collection storage area will increase our on-site storage capacity allowing for the creation of additional storage and work spaces, and improving current storage conditions for our artifacts. The improved conditions translate to better preservation of our artifacts, easier access to artifacts in storage, and an increased ability to rotate artifacts into and out of exhibit spaces.

This new storage system is the beginning of a larger plan for the Museum to redesign exhibit spaces and improve storage conditions and access to the Museum’s collection of historical artifacts. Watch the Museum’s website and social media pages for updates on the installation of this new storage shelving!

Carl Sandelius

Carl Billy Sandelius was born in south Stockholm in 1930. At the age of 19, he decided to move to America and arrived in Chicago in 1949. He headed to Chicago because he had an uncle who lived here, but his first impression of Chicago wasn't what he expected. Coming on the train through south Chicago, Sandelius wondered where all the skyscrapers he heard about were. He returned to Sweden after two years and stayed for a while, but traveled back to Chicago again where he went to school to become a bricklayer.

When the Korean War started Sandelius got drafted by the United States and was sent to a village close to Bar-Le-Duc in France, where he met his future wife, Evelyn. They got married in 1957 and lived in Sweden for a few years before moving to Chicago.

Sandelius has lived in Andersonville since 1960 and was a member of Svenska Gille and later became a member of the Swedish American Museum. One place Sandelius visited many times was the old Highlife Inn, which was located south of Andersonville. The Highlife Inn had dancing on Saturdays and herring breakfast on Sundays.

A man of many talents, Sandelius started to paint and draw at a young age, one of his first assignments was to draw a picture for a school newspaper. Sandelius made a drawing of the school and St. Sigfrid’s Church in Stockholm for that project. He started painting more seriously in the 1960s, in spite of his color blindness that makes it difficult for him to see the difference between some greens and blues. The Swedish American Museum displayed some of his works in the Museum lobby this past fall as part of Andersonville Arts Weekend.

Monthly Family Events Bring More Fun for Families

The winter chill may have you wanting to stay indoors but if the little ones in your life are getting cabin fever, don’t fear—the Brunk Children’s Museum of Immigration is here! Not only are we open seven days a week for children to play and explore, but we have lots of exciting programs planned for this winter and spring.

Little ones not yet in school are able to enjoy our popular craft and story hour called Hejsan that is held on the third Friday of the month from 11 a.m. to noon, September through June. Throughout the year we are bringing that format to a special Family Story & Craft Hour on Saturdays so everyone can attend! On Saturday, Feb. 6 join us at 11 a.m. to learn more about winter sports in Sweden or save the date to attend on Saturday, April 9 and discover the true story behind the “Super Grandpa” book we will be reading.

Some favorite events are back once again at Brunk in 2016 including the always-enjoyable Pancakes with Pippi on March 12. Make sure you make your reservations early for this popular event where kids will get to learn from Pippi herself how to make pancakes her way. Confirmed reservations are required for this program and can be made on the Museum’s website.

We look forward to seeing you and your family back in Brunk Children’s Museum soon!

Genealogy

What’s In a Name?

Worry not. Research is still being done and programs are still being offered. The name simply changed to Swedish American Genealogical Society but the mission and focus remain the same. The volunteer researchers, who work in the Genealogy Center, are adept in using resources dealing with Sweden. The clients served there bring questions about their Swedish ancestry. Nordic questions did not arise and the Genealogy Center does not have resources to address such issues. Hence the name change to reflect our Swedish focus.

Genealogy assistance is still available Wednesday afternoons from noon to three; reservations are required and can be made at the Museum, by calling the Museum or emailing genealogy@samac.org. Saturday morning programs continue to be presented most months.

Participants in recent Saturday morning sessions learned the importance of tracing ancestry but also of writing a family history. Facts are the foundation of genealogy, but readers will enjoy and remember the everyday details: favorite anecdotes, embarrassing moments, family traditions, and historical connections. Formats for family histories vary from scrapbooks, memoirs and narratives to cookbooks. Adding photos to these documents brings another intimate dimension. The program on photo restoration gave participants a step-by-step approach to this process.

Come to the 2016 sessions and learn more. The January program is on “Researching Further in ArkivDigital” and will help you discover what is new in ArkivDigital and the genealogical value of lesser known records.

Water Tower Fund

Many Reasons to Celebrate

2016 brings us new beginnings, fresh opportunities, and the chance to restore our community’s treasured landmark. As we say “hej då” to 2015 and “hej” to the new year, the Museum will celebrate its 40th anniversary, as well as the 15th birthday of the Brunk Children’s Museum of Immigration. In addition to recognizing these significant achievements, the Museum is looking forward to erecting a replica of the iconic and sorely missed Andersonville Water Tower.

While the replica will not serve as a functioning replacement for the former water tower, it will serve as a reminder of our history and a symbol of our perseverance. To date, the Museum has raised nearly $120,000 of the projected $150,000 needed for the Water Tower Fund. We want to express our gratitude to those who participated in our can drive throughout 2014 and 2015, as we were able to raise more than $1,000 toward the cause, thanks to the support of our loyal allies along North Clark Street. Though many neighborhood businesses filled can after can for the Water Tower Fund, the Swedish Bakery came in as the largest collector during the drive.

We are proud to report that the new design concept is coming along smoothly and the construction should be underway as soon as the necessary permits have been received. We will keep you updated as we look forward to celebrating these milestones with all of you throughout 2016.

Allison Deerr, Fundraising Coordinator
Do you remember your first visit to the Swedish American Museum and the gallery exhibit that day? Perhaps you recall your first Museum event? Did you enjoy a favorite Swedish food? Were you entertained with Swedish music? What have you learned at the Museum about Andersonville, or Swedes in America, or Swedish culture?

In 2016, the Swedish American Museum will celebrate 40 years of memories and will also mark the 15th birthday of the Brunk Children’s Museum of Immigration. That’s four decades of support from Museum members, volunteers and visitors.

To honor this milestone—and have some fun along the way—be sure to watch the Museum’s website and Facebook page for some daily fun facts. Here’s a sample to get you started. Did you know that…

• on September 18, 1838 the first Swedish pioneer, Olof Gottfrid Lange arrived in Chicago?
• on Jan. 6, 1878 Carl August Sandburg, Swedish-American and Illinois poet laureate, was born?
• on July 21, 1969 Swedish-American Buzz Aldrin was the second astronaut to set foot on the moon?
• on Dec. 22, 2014 a replica of the Dala horse originally donated by SWEA was returned to Clark and Farragut?

A new distinctive jewelry line from Sweden has hit the shelves of the Kerstin Andersson Museum Store. The sinuous, delicate yet powerful iron designs of Smedja Therese are all originals made by blacksmith Therese Engdahl in her studio in Göteborg, Sweden.

Blacksmithing is one of the oldest professions. Engdahl started to forge at an early age, heating iron up to 2300 Fahrenheit before shaping it with an anvil and hammer into a new form limited only by her creativity. Together with her husband, Niclas, they run Smedja Therese.

A thin, coiled snake wraps around the wearer's finger in one piece. In another design an iron leaf with intricate details dazzles in a necklace. Regardless of the design, all jewelry from Smedja Therese includes a form of a snake, the design house's symbol. On some items like a hairpin that curves into the familiar shape of the snake this is obvious. In other pieces the snake is hidden. In many cultures the snake symbol is one of power, strength, wisdom and healing. It is that meaning that the snake takes on in Smedja Therese designs.

Another prominent symbol in the line is that of leaves which represent growth, new life and hope. In some cultures it is believed that the leaf symbol keeps bad spirits away. Some folklorist would say the same for iron. It is amazing how these pieces can be so delicate-looking and yet also strong—in meaning and medium. Come into the Museum Store and see the power and beauty of the forge for yourselves in these new, unique designs from Sweden.

Intern Spotlight

Maria Chrysander

Most of you have probably seen me running around the Swedish American Museum since September. For those who haven't, my name is Maria Chrysander and I am an intern at the Museum. Born and raised just outside of Gothenburg, Sweden, I had never set foot in the United States before I came here for this internship, and I wasn't quite sure what to expect.

Back home I have spent almost four years studying museums and cultural heritage studies as well as art history and visual studies at Umeå University and the University of Gothenburg. In the past I've also spent six months in China and worked as an English teacher for preschoolers when I was 19. I found out about the Museum a couple of years ago and when it was time to find an internship, I decided to apply to the Swedish American Museum.

My main project during this internship has been the Oral History Project, where Swedish immigrants and Swedish-Americans are interviewed about their life and thoughts about Sweden, Swedish-American culture and Andersonville. It has been an interesting project and I have learned a lot about not only Andersonville but also the Swedish-American culture and history. The interviews are living documents with real people containing real stories, making it an amazing thing of which to be a part.

Museums have always been a passion of mine, and I feel very lucky that I came to the Swedish American Museum. I have never experienced a museum that is such a big part of its community and that is so loved by its members, volunteers and visitors. There is warmth and a big heart to it all, which I haven't seen anywhere else. Chicago and the Swedish American Museums have exceeded all of my expectations and I have loved my time here.

Maria Chrysander, Intern
Everyone should plan for two important dates coming up:

April 15 – taxes due and…
April 16 – the 2016 Swedish American Museum’s Tantalizing Treasures Sale!

We all have to get our financial papers ready for April 15. But, in addition, we need to gather our no longer needed items well before April 16 so they can be put to good use as well as earn you a tax write-off for charitable contributions.

The Museum is once again accepting donations starting now through the beginning of April. Everyone benefits from this event. Besides passing along no longer needed items and realizing a tax break, donors and customers are thrilled to discover perfect treasures and the Museum benefits as revenue from the sale is used to fund programs.

Check your closet, basement, dressers, attic and shelves for jewelry, household items, Swedish collectibles, linen, silver, crystal, paintings, posters, or other items you no longer need. Furniture is also accepted!

Be part of this exciting event as a donor, volunteer, or customer.
